

Contents

Page

vii FOREWORD

viii ABOUT THIS GUIDEBOOK

xii ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

3 INTRODUCTION

4 International commitment to gender and development

6 The nature of women's and men's work

7 Defining unpaid work

10 Gender equality: A framework for analysing unpaid work

11 Time-use: Measuring and valuing unpaid work

13 Transforming statistics on unpaid work for policy and public action

14 A framework for integrating unpaid work into national policies

16 References

17 MODULE ONE: COLLECTING TIME-USE DATA

19 Part I. Concepts and practices

19 Overview

20 Purposes of the Module

21 What are time-use statistics?

23 How are time-use data collected?

33 What are the basic survey specifications for measuring time spent on unpaid work?

- 38 How do data recorded in individual diaries become useful summaries in statistical tables?
- 48 References

49 Part II. Activity classification for time-use statistics on unpaid work:

Proposed United Nations Classification of Activities for Time-Use Statistics

- 49 Purpose and nature of the classification: General remarks
- 50 Concepts and definitions
- 53 Principles used for constructing the classification
- 57 Structure and coding system of the classification
- 59 Application of the classification
- 70 References

71 MODULE TWO: TIME-USE DATA AND VALUATION OF UNPAID WORK

MEASURING THE VALUE OF UNPAID WORK

- 73 Overview
- 74 Purposes of the Module
- 75 What is unpaid work in household production?
- 79 What is the framework for analysis of unpaid work?
- 90 How will the Household Satellite Account reflect unpaid work?
- 105 References

107 MODULE THREE: SITUATIONAL ANALYSIS

THE CONTEXT OF PAID AND UNPAID WORK

- 109 Overview
- 110 Purposes of the Module
- 111 Gender equality: A framework for assessment and analysis
- 111 How is the situation analysis linked to policy-making?

- 113 What are the considerations in the situational analysis of unpaid work?
- 119 What are the sources of statistical data and information?

129 MODULE FOUR: POLICY IMPLICATIONS OF UNPAID WORK

PUBLIC ACTION FOR GENDER AND DEVELOPMENT

- 131 Overview
- 132 Purposes of the Module
- 133 Why is unpaid work excluded from national policies?
- 133 What are the policy implications of unpaid work?

149 MODULE FIVE: ADVOCACY FOR POLICY ON UNPAID WORK

WINNING THE SUPPORT OF POLICY MAKERS AND STAKEHOLDERS

- 151 Overview
- 152 Purposes of the Module
- 153 What is communication and social mobilization in the context of unpaid work?
- 154 Who are the key actors and stakeholders in development programmes?
- 156 What are the processes and strategies for mobilizing action?
- 158 Why advocate for counting unpaid work?
- 160 What does advocacy mean in policy-making?
- 163 What are the steps for effective advocacy?
- 168 How can one tell if advocacy is working?
- 169 References

171 MODULE SIX: COUNTRY EXPERIENCES: SOME PRACTICAL CASES

173 Part I. From statistics to national policies on unpaid work: The case of the Republic of Korea

- 173 Introduction
- 174 National time-use survey
- 175 Results
- 178 Valuing unpaid work

187 Part II. Women's participation in India: Chasing a mirage

- 187 Introduction
- 188 National time-use survey
- 192 Gender sensitization of the national census: A strategy for policy intervention on unpaid work

197 Part III. Time-use data unlock gender-friendly policies: The case of Mongolia

- 197 Introduction
- 198 Pilot time-use survey

203 TIME-USE WEB SITES

207 ANNEXES

- 209 Annex I. Design specifications of data collection on time-use in selected developing countries, 1995-2000
- 223 Annex II. Stylized questionnaire on time-use in SNA work activities in the Nepal Labour Force Survey
- 225 Annex III. Structure of the United Nations International
Classification of Activities for Time-Use Statistics
(ICATUS)