Introduction

In 2025, the global community will mark the thirtieth anniversary of the Fourth World Conference on Women and the adoption of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action (1995), and 10 years of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals. On this occasion, the sixty-ninth session of the Commission on the Status of Women, scheduled for March 2025, will conduct a comprehensive review and appraisal of the progress made in the implementation of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action (BPfA) and accelerate the realization of gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls.

To facilitate the global review, the regional commissions of the United Nations have been invited to undertake regional reviews and convene regional intergovernmental meetings. The United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) will lead the Asia-Pacific regional intergovernmental review of the BPfA, in close collaboration with UN Women Regional Office for Asia and the Pacific and supported by the rest of the United Nations system under the umbrella of the Asia-Pacific Issue-Based Coalition on Promoting Human Rights, Gender Equality, and Women’s Empowerment.

The Beijing +30 regional review is structured around three main tracks: analytical, consultative, and intergovernmental. Within the analytical track, member States have been invited to undertake comprehensive national-level reviews that take stock of achievements, identify gaps and setbacks, and outline strategies for addressing those gaps and challenges at the national level. Member States are expected to respond to a survey and submit national reports by 1 June 2024.

The present Frequently Asked Questions: Navigating the Beijing+30 National-level Review and Survey Process, prepared by ESCAP and the UN Women Regional Office for Asia and the Pacific, is designed to clarify common inquiries, streamline the survey submission process, and support the national review efforts.

As in previous regional review processes of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action, national reports will feed into the Asia-Pacific synthesis report that ESCAP will prepare in advance of the Asia-
Pacific Ministerial Conference on the Beijing+30 Review. They will also feed into a global synthesis report that UN-Women will submit to the sixty-ninth session of the Commission on the Status of Women.

Frequently Asked Questions

General Review Process

➢ When is the deadline to submit the national survey and report?

The deadline to upload a completed national survey and report is 1 June 2024.

Please refer to the CSW69 / Beijing+30 Preparations and Guidance Note for Comprehensive National-level Reviews.

➢ How do I ensure input from all relevant stakeholders?

As is described in the Guidance Note for Comprehensive National-level Reviews, the review process is led by the national gender machinery, with the active engagement of all stakeholders, from different levels of government, civil society organizations, the private sector, the entities of the United Nations system and regional and international organizations, academia, the media and other stakeholders.

This will ensure a participatory and transparent review process at the national and sub-national levels, based on evidence, while also producing tangible lessons and solutions, which should be followed by concrete action and collaboration towards the implementation of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action and the SDGs.

Please see a suggested timeline below:

19-21 November 2024: Asia-Pacific Ministerial Conference on the Beijing+30 Review

➢ How do I best disseminate the results of the national review process?

The comprehensive national-level review should be well publicized, and regular updates on activities provided, through traditional and new media, including social media. Once completed, national reports should be launched in a highly visible manner, preferably by the Head of State with the national mechanism for gender equality and the empowerment of women, and widely disseminated.

National Reports and Surveys

➢ What should I do if I miss the deadline for submission?

The deadlines for the national reports are established to facilitate a seamless Beijing +30 review process. Timely submissions are crucial as they directly impact subsequent activities, including regional consultations. Delays in submission may prevent member States from being featured in the regional reports and, consequently, in the global reports. We recognize that member States may face various challenges that could hinder prompt submissions. However, we urge all States to strive for punctuality in their submissions to maintain the integrity of the review process.

In the event that a deadline is missed, we kindly ask you to contact our office immediately to notify us of the delay Please proceed to submit your national report and complete the survey at your earliest convenience.

➢ If I miss the deadline, how much extension time could be granted?
In order to integrate national reports into our regional analysis, extensions can only be granted until 15 June. In very exceptional circumstances only, we may consider a further extension until 23 June. This accommodates our strict timeline for preparing background papers for the regional ministerial conference, ensuring member States have sufficient time to review the papers. Submissions received after these dates cannot be integrated into the regional analysis.

- Can you tell me more about the survey?
  Member States are requested to fill out a short online survey consisting of multiple-choice questions, at the end of which they will have the option to upload their national reports in Word or PDF format. The survey is hosted on the Survey Monkey platform, ensuring a secure and user-friendly experience.

- What questions will the survey ask?
  The survey consists of a series of close-ended questions that mirror the structure of the narrative report. For ease of reference, the survey questions are included in the PART II of the Guidance Note for Comprehensive National-level Review.

- Where can I find information to include in my national reports?
  National reports should be built on and drawn from the inputs of national consultative processes. They should also utilize existing sources of information. For detailed guidance on potential information sources, please refer to PART I of the Guidance Note for Comprehensive National-level Review.

- Is there a recommended structure or template for the national report?
  While no specific template is provided, the guidance note advises that countries are encouraged to structure the report along the lines highlighted below, ensuring each section is developed in a balanced manner:

  Section 1 should provide a one-to-two-page synthesis highlighting the core elements of the country-level review process, main achievements, challenges and setbacks over the past five years, and a maximum of two promising practices that may be relevant for other countries, preferably with a focus on measures with a transformative potential.

  Section 2 should provide macro analysis of priorities, achievements, challenges and setbacks, with a focus on the past five years (i.e. 2020 to 2024, or five years since the completion of the last report); as well as new and emerging priorities for the future.

  Section 3 should provide a more detailed analysis of measures taken to advance gender equality across the twelve critical areas of concern of the BPfA and the relevant SDGs with a focus on the last five years (i.e. since 2020 or the completion of the previous report). The use of the thematic clusters and guiding questions is encouraged to reflect on how the BPfA and the 2030 Agenda can be implemented in a mutually reinforcing manner to accelerate progress for all women and girls. For each of the areas, special attention should be given to elaborate on concrete examples of the measures that were taken, the challenges encountered, and the achievements made, using data to document them where available.

Section 4 should cover national processes and mechanisms, linking those related to the implementation and monitoring of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action with those related to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

Section 5 should highlight progress on the availability of data disaggregated by sex and gender statistics, linking the monitoring of implementation of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action with gender-responsive implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

Section 6 should present forward-looking reflections on future challenges and priority actions that are needed to accelerate the implementation of the BPfA and the 2030 Agenda, notably as part of the Decade of Action for sustainable development.

For detailed guidance on each section, please consult Part II of Guidance Note for Comprehensive National-level Review.

Additionally, to further assist the drafting process, we invite you to participate in the Beijing+30 National-level Review and Survey Virtual Workshop, scheduled for Wednesday, 3 April 2024, from 9:00 to 10:30, and Thursday, 4 April 2024, from 14:00 to 15:30 Bangkok time (GMT+7). This workshop will provide comprehensive training on the reporting process, enabling member States to learn more about the national review and survey and providing an opportunity to ask questions. Recordings of the workshop will be made available on the event page shortly after the session.

- What time period should the national reports cover?

National reports should synthesize the progress over the last five years (approximately 2020–2024, or since the completion of the national report on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the Beijing Platform for Action), the persisting challenges for women and girls, and the way forward, based on the survey provided in Part II of the Guidance Note for Comprehensive National-level Review.

- How do I submit the national reports?

Please note that the submission of national reports will take place through an online platform (new!) this year. Member States are requested to kindly fill out a short online survey at the end of which they will be able to upload their national reports in either Word or PDF format. A personalized or password protected link to the dedicated online platform has been shared with national focal points through email by 31 October 2023.
Will UN Women provide English translations of the national reports?
UN-Women will not translate reports and will post them on the website in the language(s) received.

Do I need to publish the full national report publicly?
While there is no mandatory directive requiring the publication of the national report in a gazette, the Guidance Note for Comprehensive National-level Review advises that the comprehensive national-level review should be well-publicized and that national reports should be launched in a highly visible manner. Each country is encouraged to conduct its consultation process in a way that is both inclusive and participatory. This approach facilitates the engagement of all stakeholders, particularly those whose voices are often underrepresented.

Can civil society submit shadow reports as part of the survey process?
While the process for submitting shadow reports is still under development, we encourage you to refer to the UN Women webpage from the Beijing +25 review for interim guidance. This page provides examples of how shadow reports were collected from civil society at global, regional, and country levels. Specific instructions and updates will be continuously provided to guide your submissions effectively.

Navigating the Online Platform
What languages are the survey available in? How do I change the survey language?
The survey is available in all official languages of the United Nations. To change the language of the survey, please look for the language selection option located at the top right corner of the survey page.
Can I complete the online survey in several sessions?

We strongly recommend you prepare survey answers in advance using information in the Guidance Note for Comprehensive National-level Review and aim to complete the survey in one session. This ensures efficiency and reduces the risk of data loss or session timeouts. However, if you are experiencing an unreliable internet connection, the survey platform is designed to auto-save your progress. This feature is effective as long as you reconnect using the same IP address and browser.

For added security and ease, consider drafting your responses in a separate document beforehand, which allows for easier data entry during your survey session.

Can I change my survey answers after the submission?

During the process of completing the survey, you are able to navigate back and forth between questions to review and modify your answers as needed. However, it is important to note that once you click the 'Submit' button and your national report is uploaded, you will NOT be able to make any further changes to your responses.
We strongly recommend that you carefully review all answers before finalizing the survey. To avoid the need for modifications after submission, it is advisable to prepare your answers comprehensively and complete the survey in a single session.

- What information do I need to provide when filling out the survey?
  Before starting the survey, you will need to provide specific details that include your country, name, the institution you represent, and your email address. These details are essential for the validation process, ensuring that your submission is accurately recorded and can be associated with the correct entity. Please refer to the screenshot below for a visual guide on where to enter this information in the survey.
Do I need to answer every question in the survey? Can I skip any part of the survey?

Most questions in the survey are mandatory. As you proceed through the survey, please be aware of an asterisk (*) next to the question number—this symbol indicates that the question is compulsory. You must provide an answer to questions marked with an asterisk in order to move forward to subsequent questions. Failure to answer these questions will prevent progression through the survey. For sample question, please refer to the screenshot below.

How many answers can I select for multiple-choice questions in the survey? Is it possible to choose all options provided?
The number of answers you can select varies by question. It is important to carefully read the instructions provided in parentheses at the end of each question as these guidelines are essential for correctly navigating the survey. For example, as illustrated in the screenshot below, some questions may allow you to select up to five answers. To advance to the next question, make sure you do not exceed the maximum number of responses permitted for that question.
How many files can I upload for the national report? Could I also submit separate alternative reports by CSOs in addition to the main national report?

On the national report submission page, you are limited to uploading one document. If you wish to include additional supporting information or documents, these should be incorporated into an annex within the same document.

Can I submit the online survey and the national report at different times?

Unfortunately, the online survey and the national report must be submitted simultaneously. Both are due by June 1st. This simultaneous submission ensures that we can compile and analyze all national reports efficiently, aiding in the timely preparation of the regional and global report.

Will I receive a full copy of my submission upon submitting the survey on the online platform?

After receiving the submission, we will go through a process of validating the national submissions with the focal point. As part of this process, a copy of the survey responses will be sent to the focal point. Please be aware that this does not occur immediately after submission.
As the specifics of this process are still being finalized, the exact timeframe within which you will receive the copy of your responses is yet to be determined.
