A. Resolutions adopted by the Commission at its seventy-ninth session

Resolution 79/1
Accelerating climate action in Asia and the Pacific for sustainable development

_The Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific,_

_Recalling_ General Assembly resolution 70/1 of 25 September 2015, by which the Assembly adopted the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development,

_Recalling also_ General Assembly resolution 77/165 of 14 December 2022 on the protection of the global climate for present and future generations of humankind, in which the Assembly recalled the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change¹ and the Paris Agreement,² acknowledged that they are the primary international intergovernmental forums for negotiating the global response to climate change, expressed determination to address decisively the threat posed by climate change and environmental degradation, recognized that the global nature of climate change calls for the widest possible international cooperation aimed at accelerating the reduction of global greenhouse gas emissions and addressing adaptation to the adverse impacts of climate change, and noted with concern the significant gap between the aggregate effect of parties’ mitigation pledges, in particular their nationally determined contributions, as appropriate, and aggregate emission pathways, and in which the Assembly also recalled the Paris Agreement, which, pursuant to article 2, paragraph 2, thereof, will be implemented to reflect equity and the principle of common but differentiated responsibilities and respective capabilities, in the light of different national circumstances, and in which the Assembly urged Member States to adopt a climate- and environment-responsive approach to coronavirus disease (COVID-19) recovery efforts in order to achieve a sustainable, resilient and inclusive recovery and accelerate a transition to low-emission, climate-resilient, inclusive and sustainable economies and societies,

_Recalling further_ its resolution 78/1 of 27 May 2022, entitled “Bangkok Declaration Commemorating the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific: a Common Agenda to Advance Sustainable Development in Asia and the Pacific”, in which the members and associate members of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific reaffirmed their commitment to advancing sustainable development in Asia and the Pacific, as well as its resolutions 72/8 of 19 May 2016 on fostering regional cooperation and partnerships to respond to the climate change challenge in the Asia-Pacific region and

² See FCCC/CP/2015/10/Add.1, decision 1/CP.21, annex.
Recalling the Kunming-Montreal Global Biodiversity Framework\(^3\) and its mission to take urgent action to halt and reverse biodiversity loss by 2030, and recalling also resolution 5/5 of 2 March 2022 of the United Nations Environment Assembly of the United Nations Environment Programme on nature-based solutions for supporting sustainable development,\(^4\) in which the Environment Assembly recognized that nature-based solutions could contribute significantly to climate action,

Recalling also General Assembly resolution 77/161 of 14 December 2022 on promoting zero-waste initiatives to advance the 2030 Agenda, in particular paragraph 7, and recognizing the importance of raising awareness of national, subnational, and local initiatives to promote climate action, including through innovative climate-resilient waste management initiatives as a means to advance the 2030 Agenda,

Reaffirming our commitment to promoting multilateralism and international cooperation, strengthening partnerships for sustainable development, upholding the principles of international law and the Charter of the United Nations and advancing sustainable development in Asia and the Pacific,

Reaffirming also its resolution 78/1, in which it committed itself to protecting our planet, noted that without more determined actions, the planet would be more affected by multiple challenges to our common environment, inter alia, climate change, biodiversity loss and pollution, and all types of natural disasters, with small island developing States, least developed countries and landlocked developing countries being among the most affected, recognized that a clean, healthy and sustainable environment was important for the enjoyment of human rights and for sustainable development in all its dimensions, noted that human beings were at the centre of concerns for sustainable development and that they were entitled to healthy and productive lives in harmony with nature, noted also that the well-being of humanity depended on the health of nature and hence on the ability to sustainably use, restore and protect the ecosystem services, recalled the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change and the Paris Agreement, and in that connection, noted the need to immediately curb greenhouse gas emissions and pursue an effective and progressive response to the urgent threat of climate change on the basis of the best available scientific knowledge and achieve a more balanced growth, including through sustainable consumption and production patterns, in line with the 2030 Agenda, and noted also the need to take urgent actions to enhance international collaboration for the conservation and sustainable use of the oceans, seas and marine resources and reduce pollution of air, oceans and fresh water, mitigate the impacts of pollution on human health and halt the global decline of biodiversity,

Reiterating that mitigation of and adaptation to climate change represent an immediate and urgent global priority,

Reaffirming that climate change is one of the greatest challenges of our time and is already resulting in multiple negative impacts on economies and societies, emphasizing the urgency of scaling up action and support, including finance, capacity-building and technology transfer, on voluntary and mutually agreed terms, to strengthen resilience and reduce vulnerability to climate change, taking into account the priorities and needs of developing countries,
