IV. South Asian Leaders Highlight Initiatives Towards Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) At the UN-General Assembly

Bangladesh

H.E. Ms. Sheikh Hasina, Prime Minister of Bangladesh, in her address highlighted that this year Bangladesh is celebrating the golden jubilee year of its independence. It was shared that Bangladesh has made a strong economic growth performance and is one of the five fastest growing economies in the world, along with reducing the poverty rate from 31.5% to 20.5% over the last ten years. In her address, Ms. Hasina underlined upon Bangladesh’s positive performance amongst other socio-economic indicators over the past decade, including improvements in per capita income, foreign currency reserves, reductions in infant and maternal mortality, and increase in the life expectancy. She also discussed the ‘Digital Bangladesh’ initiative, which had an enormous impact on socio-economic development, education, disaster risk reduction, women’s empowerment, among others. Further, she stated that the COVID-19 pandemic had a much lower impact than was initially feared in Bangladesh, due to the strength of the healthcare system at the grassroots level.

Additionally, H.E. Ms. Sheikh Hasina made six important points for the future response of the global community in reference to some specific issues. Firstly, she talked about ensuring universal and affordable access to vaccines for people across the world. Secondly, she called upon the rich and industrialized countries to “cut emissions, compensate for the loss and damage, and ensure adequate financing and technology transfer for adaptation and resilience building”, especially considering that the pandemic had a disproportionate impact on climate vulnerable countries. Thirdly, she called for a plan to prioritize education recovery by investing in digital tools and services, access to internet, and capacity building of teachers. Fourthly, she talked about the risk of lower LDC graduation prospects and aspirations of many countries due to the COVID-19 pandemic, and the provision of more support to these countries. Fifthly, she urged migrant receiving countries to “treat them fairly and protect their job, health, and well-being”.

Bhutan

His Excellency Dr Lotay Tshering, Prime Minister of the Kingdom of Bhutan shared about the 50th anniversary of Bhutan’s membership to the UN and used the opportunity to thank everyone involved for the support in this journey. He highlighted that Bhutan would be graduating soon from the LDC status reflected the joint efforts undertaken which paved the way to make it possible. Further, he highlighted the efforts undertaken by the three Bhutanese kings during the 50 years of UN membership in making sustainable development along the SDGs and in accordance with its Gross National Happiness philosophy possible. The current King and Queen helped to limit the impact of the current COVID-19 pandemic through varied measures, and it was noted that almost 80% of the Bhutanese population above 18 is fully vaccinated which is in alignment with the royal vision to provide free health and educational care. Additionally, Dr. Tshering stated that various measures such as promoting digital initiatives such as digital ID along with youth engagement programs are the key to recover from the pandemic and for sustainable development.
His Excellency emphasized that the most important lesson learnt from this pandemic is that the world needs to be prepared with a more resilient system for the future as there will be more outbreaks of infectious diseases. One important element that was underlined, next to an affordable and equal healthcare system was a sustainable UN food system that would meet the needs of all in accordance with the SDGs. To come closer to this goal, he stated that Bhutan maintains more than half of its country as protected areas. Tougher climate laws are also needed as a component of the NDCs from all countries worldwide. Additionally, his excellency highlighted its country’s support and leadership role to spearhead Common Agenda. Read more here

India

H.E Mr. Narendra Modi, Prime Minister of India, in his address touched upon several pressing global issues such as the COVID-19 pandemic, vaccine equity, the need to combat terrorism, international peace and security, reformed multilateralism and sustainable development. He invited the global community to come and make vaccines in India, and laid emphasis upon the fact that world’s first DNA vaccine for COVID-19 for everyone aged above 12 years has been developed in India. Additionally, India will soon resume vaccine supplies to the world. On maritime security, he stated that our oceans are also the lifeline of international trade and we must protect them from the race for expansion. Further, India has a strong record on climate action and has an ambitious vision, including for renewables and green hydrogen. He cautioned against the increasing threat of regressive thinking and extremism, calling on the world to make science-based, rational and progressive thinking a basis for development.

Highlighting the importance of UNGA platform for the country, it was remarked that it is essential to strengthen the United Nations to protect the global order, global laws and global values and stressed upon improving the effectiveness and enhancing the reliability of the Organisation to meet the current challenges. Islamic Republic of Iran

H.E Mr. Seyyed Ebrahim Raisi, President of Iran, in his address highlighted the plight of Iranians owing to the US sanctions that hindered vaccine imports from reliable international sources, thereby, pushing Iran to sustainably produce vaccines domestically. He stressed that cooperation amongst the countries of the world in the realm of health and vaccines is tantamount to helping the spirit of humanity and the policy based of divinity-humanity in international relations. President Mr. Seyyed Ebrahim Raisi reminded the world to pay attention by stating what inattention begets “crises in human societies, such as violence, poverty, unemployment, moral and economic corruption, collapse of family foundations, regional wars, organized terrorism and environmental crises are all the result of inattention to the principles of rationality, justice and freedom”.

Further, he asserted that Iran is keen to have “large-scale political and economic cooperation and convergence with the rest of the world,” stating that “a new era has begun”. Read more here

Republic of Maldives

H.E. Mr. Ibrahim Mohamed Solih, President of Maldives, called on the world community to be resolute in the face of further challenges from the COVID-19 pandemic, along with the adverse effects of climate change, the problems of famine, and the menace of terrorism. He highlighted that that COVID-19 was a particular challenge for the Maldives country, as it relies on tourism for foreign exchange and relies upon imports for nearly all essential commodities. Further, COVID-19 pandemic related lockdowns, resulted in challenges in education and had to upgrade their healthcare system.

Mr. Solih then called upon the international community to provide vaccine equity. He highlighted upon the grave threat faced by small island developing nations such as Maldives due to climate change, considering the report published by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change and outlined that Maldives plans to reach net-zero by the year 2030. Further, he steadfastly condemned terrorism in all its forms and shared the commitment to work with the international community to address this problem along with highlighting the concerns about conflict areas throughout the world. He concluded stating the country’s belief that the UN is still the best hope for humanity in solving all its problems and was grateful to the international community for supporting the Maldives’ candidature for the Presidency of the General Assembly. Nepal

H.E. Dr. Narayan Khadka, Minister for Foreign Affairs, Nepal in his address, first underlined the global impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, and highlighted that “in Nepal, saving lives, strengthening the health system, and pursuing economic recovery and transformation” underpinned their efforts to build a sustainable and resilient recovery. He called for peace in conflict areas and the provision of humanitarian aid. He also communicated Nepal’s belief that countries contributing many troops and police officers, such as itself, deserved more senior level positions both at the headquarters and in the field. Dr Khadka also condemned the arms race and terrorism in all its forms. He called upon countries to provide a breakthrough at the Glasgow COP26, and that the “climate ambitions of developing countries must be met with easier access to adequate financial and technological support for adaptation and mitigation”.

It was mentioned that Nepal has mainstreamed the sustainable development goals into its national plans, policies and programmes, and significant progress had been made across major sectors. Further, Nepal plans of seeking to graduate from the LDC category by the year 2026. Dr. Khadka called upon the global community to make a concerted effort to protect minorities and to ensure the safety, security, dignity, and well-being of all migrant workers. He indicated Nepal’s support towards the measures and initiatives aimed at UN reforms, with under-representation of developing countries a priority, especially within the Security Council, while calling for a revitalized General Assembly. He finally called upon the world to find a common ground and asked for an end to the polarization within and among countries.

Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka

H.E. Mr. Gotabaya Rajapaksa, President of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka, in his address noted the devastating impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and appreciated the rapid advances made by the scientific community. However, he also recognized the need to overcome the challenges surrounding the production, distribution, deployment, and acceptance of the COVID-19 vaccine. Mr. Rajapaksa while conveying his gratitude towards the bilateral and multilateral donors for their support to manage the pandemic, underlined that more measures are required to be undertaken as the developing countries have been hit the hardest which has put the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development Goals at considerable risks. More initiatives including development financing and debt relief are needed as responses to the pandemic have limited the fiscal space to implement development programs.

Further, he emphasized that the consequences of climate change will even be more devastating than those of COVID-19 and thus, achievement of the SDGs is vital. As a climate-vulnerable country, Sri Lanka has undertaken sustainability as one of the cornerstones of its national policy framework and hoped that the United Nations Food Summit in October would promote healthier, more sustainable, and equitable food systems globally. Mr. Rajapaksa noted that the country has undertaken several measures in alignment with SDG targets such as cleaning and restoring rivers, combating river and maritime pollution, banishing of single use plastics, conserving the environment, implementing administrative and educational reforms and increasing the share of renewable energy sources.

Turkey

His Excellency, Recep Tayyip Erdoğan, President of Turkey, in his address spoke about the devastating impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. He highlighted that despite the significant progress made, the negative impacts are still more than visible and thus, the spirit of solidarity must be visible at the international level. In the future, Turkey will offer its national vaccine to other countries.
He expressed his concerns about the irreparable consequences of climate change and shared that it would hinder the goal to reach a prosperous future for the entire human race in accordance with the vision of the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda. Currently, Turkey is already experiencing climate change related disasters which threaten the environment, life and property. Mr. Erdoğan highlighted that the world needs to find solutions to migration related to climate change, conflicts and other disasters as well such as forest fires, rising sea levels and storms as finding solutions to these issues will support the fulfilment of the SDGs. Further, he noted the importance of countries with greater historical responsibility for the emergence of global warming to take the main responsibility to fight climate change. Also, he expressed the continued support of Turkey to the Paris Agreement and its NDCs. Actions such as a harmonization with the European Green Deal are envisioned within the next month. A fairer world is possible through the UN thanks to the common sustainable development agenda despite the difficulties that the world faces today. Read more here
