

Development challenges of income support and social protection

{ Jorge Carrillo-Rodriguez

Regional Consultation on Strengthening Income Support for Vulnerable Groups in Asia and the Pacific }
Incheon, 26-27 March 2014.

- & Introduction
- & Life-cycle, risks and vulnerabilities
- & Policy challenges
- & Towards universal protection

Contents

Can income support and social protection contribute to development processes?

‡ Development challenges:

- ‡ Social and economic needs
- ‡ Effective policy making

Income support as development

- ‡ Continuum of age-stages where the needs of an individual changes through their life
- ‡ Different stages and events of life which an individual or household passes through,
- ‡ Cumulative impact of discrimination, risk, vulnerability and exclusion across an individual's life-cycle and between generations.

Life-cycle, risks and vulnerabilities

- ‡ Making income support responsive to gender
- ‡ Youth unemployment: the case for policy integration
- ‡ Ageing: The impending transformation
- ‡ Informality and mobility

Life-cycle, risks and vulnerabilities

- ‡ Income support as a pathway out of poverty: the graduation model
- ‡ Political economy of social protection and income support
- ‡ Fiscal contraction and development

Policy Challenges

- ‡Resources mobilization and allocation
- ‡Institutional capacity
- ‡Engagement and collaboration

Towards universal support systems

- ‡Income support CAN contribute to development
- ‡Fragmentation must be approached differently
- ‡Institutional and political setups are crucial
- ‡Universal protection must be the goal

Final remarks

Thank you