Regional Road Map for implementing the 2030 in Asia and the Pacific

Background and process

Based on extensive dialogue between member states and inputs from civil society organizations and the broader UN community, Asia and the Pacific developed a regional road map for implementing the 2030 Agenda.

The road map stemmed from decisions mandated at the Second and Third Asia-Pacific Forums on Sustainable Development (APFSD) in 2015 and 2016.

The road map was adopted in March 2017 - in the Fourth session of the APFSD.

It is the only inter-governmentally agreed, member-state driven, regional roadmap for implementing the 2030 Agenda.
A Regional Road Map for Asia and the Pacific

Reflections on the review process

HLPF under review in 2019 - member countries and other stakeholders to reflect on the success and limitations of the current process;

Role of the stakeholders to be strengthened - to allow a wider contribution from the different actors at the country level;

Need of a stronger regional and sub-regional follow-up and review - to allow countries to discuss and exchange perspectives in a smaller setting;

Role of South-south cooperation and twinning of countries to support the VNR process.
